THE DIRECT TAX FUND

FOR COUNTY OF CHESTERFIELD,

The Last or Third District, Which Also Embraces the City of Manchester-The Names of the Land-Owners.

After publishing in yesterday's edition the names of the property owners in the First and Second districts of Chestefield county who are entitled to a refunding of the direct tax money paid in 1865, THE Times publishes this morning the names of the Third and last district. These lists were based on the land books, which contained the names of property owners in 1860, and contain, of course, all the parcels of property in Chesterfield county, including the town of Manchester, which at that time was not yet incorporated as a city:

Third District.

He showed by the citation of undoubted facts of record that the Democratic party had always been in entire sympathy with every interest of the farmer, and that no relief from the grinding policy of the Government could be expected until the Democrats get control of every branch of the legislative department of the Government. Married to a Federal Officer.

The following is taken from the High Private, which is published in Fort Assina-boin. Montana, and refers to a lady well boin. Montane, and refers to a lady well known in Virginia:

"The troops of the Tenth cavalry continue to excite admiration and comment at this post. The officers bear names famous in military annals. Of these Captain Charles G. Avres represents the new life of the army, being among the youngest cavalry captains. In spirit and physique he seems to be about the beau ideal of a troop commander. Nothing is omitted by him which can contribute in the least to the perfect discipline and elegant appearance of perfect discipline and elegant appearance of his command. The men in Troop F believe thoroughly in him, while he in turn has the namest confidence in their temper and spirit to act in concord under any and all circumstances. It was Captain Avres who, at the risk of his own life, disarmed a desperado at Fort Davis, Tex., and saved the life of a brother officer. Captain Ayres is the son of the late Major-General Ayres, who left a most brilliant record, being breveted a dozen times for conspicuous gallantry during the last two great wars.

"There was, moreover, something of real There was, moreover, something of real romance in his marriage to Mies Elizabeth Fairfax, of Virginia: for it was General Ayres' artillery that held Little Round Top in the battle of Gettysburg against General Longstreet; and it was the father of Mrs. Ayres, Colonel J. W. Fairfax, known as Longstreet's 'fighting aide' and chief of staff, who led that charge, his horse, a white stallion, being killed under him. Thus did this union combine the himand the gray and this union combine the blue and the gray, and with others have helped to seal the bonds between the North and the South. God grant us many more such unions.3

A Little Boy Blown to Death.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA., August 24.—[Special.]—News of the death of little Reese Kase, son of Mr. Alva Kase, of Stony Point, Albemarle county, has just reached here. It was the result of a most distressing accident that occurred at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. A short while before that hour the little fellow, only seven years old, went upstairs to play, where he was alone. In the room was a trunk containing among ther things a bag of powder. The boygot into the trunk and in some unaccountable way the powder exploded with terrific force, blowing the trunk into atoms, partly lifting the roof and building the sides of the house out perceptibly, knocked the plaster-ing off, tore a big hole in the floor, besides demolishing windows and doors, even in the lower room. After the smoke had cleared away search was made for the little boy, and he was found in the closet in an uncor scions condition. It is supposed that he was blown there by the terrific force of the explosion. The child recovered conscious-ness in a short while after he was found and lingered in great agony until 10 Tuesday morning, when death put an end to his sufferings. It is not known what caused the powder to explode, as the boy stated to his parents that he did not have any Farmer Edmunds Continues on Top.

LYNCHBURG, Va., August 24.—[Special. The Democratic convention for the Sixth district met at the Opera-house to-day at noon. The counties were well represented. Colonel Thomas W. Scott, of Charlotte, called the convention to order and an-nounced Colonel J. Risque Hutter, of Camp. bell county, as the temporary chairman Mr. C. D. Dennit, of Salem, as temporary secretary and Mr. C. D. Johnson, of Lynch-burg, as sergeant-at-arms. The committee on permanent organization made the following report: Chairman, Captain M. M. Rogers, of Roanoke; Secretary, J. M. lowing report: Chairman, Captsin M. M. Rogers, of Roanoke, Secretary, J. M. Speece, of Bedford City; Sergeant-at-Arms, C. Johnson, of Lynchburg. While the convention was waiting for the report of the committee on resolutions, Colonel Thomas Smith, of Warrenton, was introduced and spoke with strong effect.

When the calling of the roll of counties for nominations was begun Lynchburg had an early opportunity, and Mr. N. C. Manson, Jr., placed in nomination Hon, Paul C. Edmunds. Cheers greeted the motion, and they increased in volume when the nomina-
